Your hampers, before we build

You sent us three hamper lists, your product photos and your brand kit. This plan puts it all in one place: what we already have, what we still need from you, and the things you sent that aren't in any hamper yet. Please read it and answer the questions at the end. Then we start building.

Prepared by Cipher Four AI and Robotics 11 September 2026 Draft for your review

IN SHORT

- We have enough to start. Three hampers with prices, twelve product photos that match them, and a clean copy of your logo.
- We need one thing before we begin: your WhatsApp number. Everything else can follow.
- Five appliances aren't in any hamper: the air fryer, coffee maker, garment steamer and two blenders. You decide where they go.
- Two things to fix first. The Christmas card shows another company's contact details, and your cheaper hampers include items the most expensive one doesn't.

Your three hampers

This is how we read your lists. Please check we got them right. Anything we weren't sure about is marked with a question mark.

? Rattan box & ribbon: not on your list

17 lines on your list

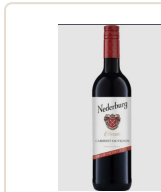

All three lists begin with “contents may include”. That's fine for a quote, but companies will want to know exactly what they're paying for. See question 2.

● WHAT WE HAVE

What we already have

Photos that match your hamper items

These twelve photos match items on your lists. They're the brands' own product photos, which makes them good for showing what's inside a hamper. They don't show your hampers. That photo is on the “still need” list.

Grace

Your logo, in a clean version

Your brand kit had a clean, drawn copy of your logo inside it, and we've saved it. It stays sharp at any size, from a phone screen to a printed box, and a printer can use it for gold foil.

The two versions sent on WhatsApp are pictures, not drawings. Both have a grey checkerboard stuck in the background that would show on the website, and the shiny one turns muddy when it's small.

Flat gold (WhatsApp)

Shiny 3D gold (WhatsApp)

OUR SUGGESTION Use the flat bronze version from the brand kit everywhere.

Your brand kit

Five pages of designs with your logo: a polo shirt, cap, pen, diaries, mug, towels and a Christmas card. The diary photo is real; the rest are digital mock-ups.

● WHAT WE STILL NEED

What we don't have yet

Only you can give us these

Your WhatsApp number and email

NEEDED TO START

The “Get a quote” button will open a WhatsApp chat with you. The current website still shows a made-up number.

One photo of each finished hamper

BEFORE LAUNCH

Packed in the rattan box, ribbon on, in good daylight. Companies will judge you by this photo more than by any product photo.

Delivery details

BEFORE LAUNCH

Which cities you deliver to, how long it takes, and how early companies should order for December.

Your smallest company order

BEFORE LAUNCH

For example, “from 10 hampers”. It's one of the first things a company buyer asks.

Photos still missing

You don't need a photo of every item. One good photo of each packed hamper covers the food. The bigger items are worth their own photo, because they show companies what they're paying for.

WORTH THEIR OWN PHOTO

Stanley cup

Power bank

Humidifier

Duvet set

Body care or fragrance set

Rattan box & ribbon

A real jar of Nutella

COVERED BY THE HAMPER PHOTO

Chocolates & cookies

Snacks

Instant coffee

Cake mix

Basmati rice

Cooking oil

Pasta

Oats

Bottled peanuts

Details missing from the lists

How many?

How many chocolates and cookies go in each hamper? Does “3 assorted tea bags” mean three boxes?

Fixed or flexible?

All three lists say “contents may include”. If the contents change, the website says “from ₦160,000” and asks for a quote. If they're fixed, we can later add online payment.

Bloom's box and card

Radiant and Grace come in a rattan box with a card. Bloom's list doesn't mention either.

What you sent that isn't in a hamper

These came with your photos but aren't on any of the three lists. They're good products. We just need to know where they belong.

Five kitchen and home appliances

Air fryer
With stacking rack

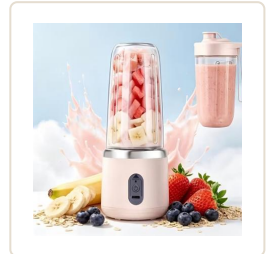

Coffee maker
HiBrew, 6 cups

Garment steamer
Handheld

Blender
Countertop, glass jug

Portable blender
Rechargeable, pink

Three ways to use them

Swaps

A company swaps one item for another, say the steamer instead of the iron. It's easy to offer, but the price stays the same, so only swap things that cost about the same.

A fourth hamper

A kitchen and home hamper built around the air fryer, blender and coffee maker. It gives companies a different kind of gift, but it's one more hamper to price, photograph and keep in stock.

Add-ons

OUR SUGGESTION

Any hamper plus an appliance, for an extra price. For example, 40 Grace hampers, with an air fryer added to the 5 for managers. Your three prices stay simple, and companies can choose to spend more.

Branded items from your brand kit

Polo shirt

Cap

Pen

2026 diary

Towels

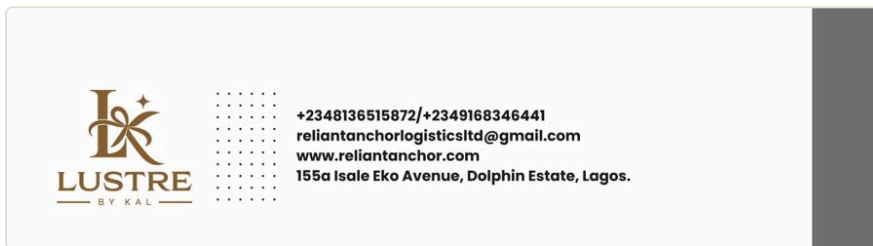

The mug and card are already in your hampers; these five aren't. Are they for your own team, as uniforms and giveaways? Or are they samples of what you can print with a client's logo? If it's the second, they could have their own "Branded company gifts" section on the website.

Things to fix before anything goes live

The Christmas card has another company's contact details

The back of the card shows your logo, but the phone numbers, email, website and address next to it belong to Reliant Anchor Logistics. The design file itself is named “reliant anchor”, so the designer probably reused an earlier job. If these cards are printed, your clients will contact the wrong company.

Fix: ask the designer to put Lustre's own details on the card, unless you run both businesses and want it this way.

Back of the card, enlarged

Your cheaper hampers include things the top one doesn't

A manager who gets Radiant (¥360,000) might see a supplier's Bloom box (¥160,000) with a kettle and a humidifier, two things Radiant doesn't have. They'll ask why theirs cost ¥200,000 more.

GADGETS & HOME	RADIANT ¥360,000	GRACE ¥260,000	BLOOM ¥160,000
Massage gun	✓	✓	✓
Stanley cup	✓	✓	✓
Power bank	✓	✓	✓
Vacuum flask	✓	✓	✓
Pressing iron	✓	✓	—
Electric kettle	—	✓	✓
Hair clipper	—	✓	—
Humidifier	—	—	✓
Duvet set	✓	—	—

Fix: each step up keeps what the hamper below it has, and adds more. So Radiant has everything in Grace, plus its own extras. You know your costs, so the exact split is your call. We can help you lay it out.

The Nutella photo shows keychains, not jars

Look at the metal loops screwed into the lids. These are small plastic copies you hang on a bag. On the website, buyers could think the hamper holds a toy.

Fix: a photo of a real jar. Your own is best.

Note the loops on the lids

The polo shirt picture has watermarks

Faint “pngtree” marks run across it. It's a free preview from a stock-image website. That's fine for showing you an idea, but it can't go on the website.

Small spelling fixes in the lists

- “Basmatic” should be basmati
 - “hamper hamper” in the Grace description should be hamper
 - “Massager gun” and “massage gun” are both used; pick massage gun
 - Bloom lists assorted tea bags twice

What happens next

STEP 1

You answer the questions

On WhatsApp is fine. The first question is all we need to start.

STEP 2

We build the hamper page

Your three hampers with prices and contents, your logo, and a “Get a quote” button that opens WhatsApp with you.

STEP 3

You check it on your phone

Tell us what to change, and we fix it.

STEP 4

It goes live

We add photos of your finished hampers as they come in.

Paying online with a “Buy now” button comes later, once contents and prices are fixed. That's part of the bigger website plan we shared on 27 August.
